Yadav informs that many plans offer higher sum insured options to shield the eld-erly from rising medical inflation, guaran-teed bonus to provide a financial incentive, and preventive care services. These plans also offer ilferime renewability and Section 80D tax deduction. In all health insurance plans, the pre-mium increases with age. "Senior citizen plans are not specifically costiler than nor-nal health insurance plans," says Singhal.

Managing the premium One way seniors can manage the high premiums at their age is by opting for a deductible. "Tyou agree to pay hospital bills of up to, say, 22,5000, you could get a 15-25 per cent discount on the premium," asys Singhal. He suggests opting for a deductible rather than a copayment as in the former, the money a customer has to pay from her pocket is capped at a specific amount. In copayment, the customer's liability increases with the size of her copayment, the customer shadonly increases with the size of her bill. Singhal recommends a deductible between 225,000 and ₹50,000. Premium can also be reduced by opting for a lower room rent category.

Buy adequate sum insured of at least US lakh for each senior citizen. "One reason is high medical inflation of 141 Spercent. The bigger risk is that later, based on your claim history, the insurer may not agree to hike the sum insured at renewal." says Singhal. When selecting a plan, give maximum weight to the waiting period for FEDs. "The shorter it is, the better," says Mehta. Senior citizen plans tend to have sub-limits. "There could be a cap for specific ail-ments such as cathract, knee or joint replace-ment, or for modern treatments. Make sure the caps are senible," says Mehta.

the caps are sensible," says Mehta. Compare the claim settlement ratios and premium rates of prospective insurers and declare your medical history honestly.
